Financial statements

Annual financial statements must be prepared unless the society or branch has opted out, by way of a resolution of a majority of the members at a meeting of the society or branch, held within 6 months from the start of the financial year, in accordance with section 64 of the Act.

Opting out

A society or branch cannot opt out where:

- › the rules expressly provide that section 64 does not apply (section 64(1)); or
- › in respect of a financial year if, in each of the 2 preceding financial years, the total operating expenditure of the society or branch is $30 million or more (section 64(2)).

Where financial statements are prepared, the statement of financial position in the annual financial statements should include all items which the society, or branch, owns on behalf of its members. In respect of consolidated funds administered by a central body, and for which a branch acts only as an agent for the transfer of levies and benefits between members and the central body, the central body should fully account for all of the funds and revenue, and the branch should exclude all such items.

Audit of financial statements

Section 64A of the Act requires a society or branch to appoint an auditor to audit its financial statements where the society or branch:

- › is a specified not-for-profit (NFP) entity (section 64A(1)); or
- › is not a specified NFP and the rules of the society require (section 64A).

Not-for-profit (NFP) entities

An entity is a specified NFP entity in respect of an accounting period if, in each of the 2 preceding accounting periods of the entity, the total operating payments of the entity are $125,000 or more.

Societies with separately registered branches

For societies with branches there are 2 acceptable ways of filing annual returns:

1. A separate annual return may be completed for each society and for each branch. The basic filing fee for each return would be determined separately (see below); or
2. One annual return may be completed, under section 70(4) of the Act, covering the society and all or some of its registered branches. What this means is that, for the branches so comprised in the society return, the membership, statement of financial performance and statement of financial position details are added together and included with those for the society itself, as a consolidated group.

A separate sheet of paper for each branch so comprised should be included showing details of the place of the registered office, the postal address, and a list of the names and addresses and designations of officers. The separate financial statements and audit report (where applicable) for each branch are also required.

Please state in an accompanying letter which branches have been comprised in the society (or district) annual return. If the financial statements of some branches are not available when the society annual return is being completed, those branches may be omitted and filed separately at a later date (and a separate filing fee would apply).

At times in this note, the terms 'central body' and 'branch' are used to encompass the relationships of a society and a lodge, a society and a district, and a district and a lodge, as appropriate.

Membership figures in the annual return should avoid double counting, where members belong to both a central body and a branch. Only members covered for any financial benefits should be included in the membership count – social members should not.

Branch assets are frequently invested in a society or district investment fund. Where this occurs, the statement of financial performance in the annual return(s) should avoid double counting the investment income (i.e. in the central body as well as the branch). Where separate annual returns are filed for a society and a branch, the society should exclude investment earnings to the extent they are paid to branches; and the branch should include those earnings in its own annual return.

Any transfers of funds to and from a central body investment fund should be excluded from both the central body and branch statements of financial performance, because they are not revenue or expenditure.

Other updates to the register

You should notify the Registrar in writing of a change of trustees, change of name and amendments to registered rules.
